EchoStar - DIRECTV: The Nation's Leading Distributors of Religious and Family Programming
June 27, 2002

EchoStar's DISH Network and Hughes Electronics' DIRECTV today offer the largest number of religious and family programming and individual religious shows available across the United States.

Though we believe the proposed merger of the two companies will be of great benefit to the religious broadcasting community, a small group of ministers is distributing a petition that argues otherwise. We feel it necessary to set the record straight.

1. Opponents' claim: EchoStar has fought against laws to carry religious broadcasters.

Fact: EchoStar fought vigorously and successfully for the Satellite Home Viewer Improvement Act of 1999 to allow satellite TV broadcasters to carry local TV channels, which in turn provide broadcast opportunities to the religious communities that would otherwise not exist. Today, EchoStar and DIRECTV offer local TV channels in more than 40 metropolitan areas and include religious broadcasters, where available, in each of those areas.

2. Opponents' claim: EchoStar wants to revoke the privileges of all those who currently watch Christian television on satellite or cable TV.

Fact: EchoStar has always complied with the must carry rules and now that the U.S. Supreme Court has decided to not revisit the issue, EchoStar will continue to comply with must carry rules. This means that the new EchoStar will continue to carry all local channels in each local area where it delivers local TV channels via satellite, including local religious channels. After the merger, with the delivery of local channels to all 210 TV markets, the new company will be the nation's largest provider of local religious broadcasters.

3. Opponents' claim: EchoStar announced its intention to drop ABC Family.

Fact: EchoStar never dropped ABC Family from its lineup since it originally launched as the Family Channel several years ago. Today, EchoStar and DIRECTV have solid agreements in place with ABC Family for continued carriage.

4. Opponents' claim: In rural areas, viewers would not have a choice if the merger is approved.

Fact: Consumers in rural America today have little or no choice for getting local TV channels via cable or satellite and little or no choice for getting affordable broadband Internet service. With the merger, consumers in rural America will receive both via satellite.

Fact: The majority of the ministers that have initiated petitions against the merger have religious TV shows that are currently carried by EchoStar or DIRECTV. The merger will provide the new company more capacity to offer more services such as these.

FACT SHEET: EchoStar - DIRECTV Offer Religious/Family Programming

June 27, 2002

EchoStar’s DISH Network and Hughes Electronics’ DIRECTV offer via satellite the most comprehensive lineup of religious and family programming available across the United States.

Religious Programming:

- 12 video and audio channels dedicated to religious programming are available through DISH Network and DIRECTV programming packages. (See attached list)
- 36 channels devoted to religious video and audio content from Dominion’s SkyAngel TV service, which is delivered through EchoStar satellites and hardware. Popular ministers offered by EchoStar or DIRECTV include Dr. John Hagee, Rev. Kenneth Copeland, Rev. Jesse Duplantis, Rev. Joyce Meyer, Dr. Creflo Dollar, Pastor Rod Parsley and other favorites like Paul and Jan Crouch. The denominations include Catholic, Mormon, Christian, African American Christian, Hispanic Ministries, Southern Gospel, Jewish programming and more.
- These channels represent hundreds of ministries and more than a thousand hours of religious programming each day that are available to nearly 18 million customers across the nation. Many of these ministries are not carried by cable and can only be seen by viewers who have a satellite dish, especially in rural areas.

Family Programming: EchoStar and DIRECTV provide over 40 channels dedicated to family entertainment and educational programming, including carriage of ABC Family, Animal Planet, Discovery Channel, Disney Channel, Nickelodeon and more.

Merger will provide more channel capacity:

The pending merger of EchoStar and HUGHES will allow the new company to end the duplicate broadcasting of programming, including the religious channels carried today by EchoStar and DIRECTV. By freeing up channel space, the new EchoStar will have the ability to offer more programming, including family and religious video and audio programming.

EchoStar and DIRECTV are also complying with must carry rules and provide all local TV stations, as required by law, including local religious channels, in each market where they offer local TV channels via satellite. The number of local religious channels carried by EchoStar and DIRECTV will continue to increase as we expand our local channel offerings to more cities. After the merger of EchoStar and Hughes, the new company will provide local TV channels, including local religious stations, to all 210 TV markets in the country.

The new EchoStar is committed to continuing the diversity of programming offered via satellite TV today. For more information, visit the websites of DISH Network, Trinity Broadcasting Network or SkyAngel.
